MaoChan Reviews: Storm Hawks July 13, 2007

Posted by MaoChan in MC Review, TV. trackback

We have some new happenings here at MaoChan. As most of you know, I used to do tech gadget reviews, it was fun and always allowed me to showcase or slam a product. Well MaoChan has gotten pretty big in terms of visitors. And someone took notice as I was approached to do a review. This will hopefully, as time goes on, become a regular part of MaoChan. On the chopping block is an up and coming show on Cartoon Network called Storm Hawks.

Combining anime inspired CG graphics, motorcycles with wings, and a dose of Saturday morning humor, Storm Hawks is fun on many levels such that I think it can appeal to more than just the 10-13 year old boy crowd. But be warned, you better realize this is no Citizen Kane.

Full Review After The Jump

ORIGIN:

Storm Hawks is an original idea by Asaph "Ace" Fipke, Nerd Corps Entertainment's CEO and founder.

TECH SPECS:

52 half hour episodes in computer generated 3D graphics by Nerd Corps Entertainment in conjunction with Cartoon Network and YTV.

AVAILABILITY:

Starting on Cartoon Network on May 25, 2007 then on YTV in late 2007. New episodes to be aired on Cartoon Network's Summer @ Seven program on Mondays.

REVIEW:

In the world of Atmos, there is little land that has not been turned into ruin. Humans and creatures alike now live on mountainous regions with little area.
